I am in receipt of your demand for a report regarding a $9,999.99 surplus in my campaign fund.

I have previously contacted your office twice by telephone to correct this matter and though promised information to do so by mail have not received anything yet.

I cannot file this report because your figures are obviously wrong.

During my entire campaign I spent less than $3,400.00 and filed a report on November 10, 1999, showing a final surplus of $36.89.

I would think that since the unusual figure of $9,999.99 is the alleged surplus and at no time did my campaign fund or any of my reports have any figure (individual or aggregate) over $4,000.00 it would seem obvious to a casual observer that this is some type of error in the Campaign Finance Office. Please refer to all of my previously filed reports.

Please provide me with detailed information showing how the alleged surplus of $9,999.99 has been arrived at and I will gladly file the required report or provide you with whatever information you think necessary to show that there is no such surplus.
